CIA BACK IN THE NEWS

NEIL STRAWSER: "The Central Intelligence Agency, which prefers undercover operations, is back in the news. The CIA tonight says it is investigating the circumstances surrounding the presence of exposed classified documents in the Washington home of one of its employees.

"The documents allegedly were spotted by another CIA agent looking over the house, which was up for sale. But there are more complications, the employee under investigation is said to have claimed $20,000 in jewelry turned up missing from his home after two agents returned to get the documents."
